CITIZENS DISCUSS NAMING OF PARKS

The names decided upon by the common council at its meeting Monday evening for Mishawaka's new parks has met with mixed approval on the streets. The names were Lincoln for the west end park and Washington for the one on the east end. Many prominent citizens thought that it was not the slightest reflection on the country's two great statesmen to suggest that the two names picked by the council were too commonplace. They stated that one could find a Washington and a Lincoln park in most any city in the country.

Lincoln park, however, has a peculiar significance in that it lies along the Lincoln highway. This highway is generally held as probably the best that could be chosen for the city garden being built on the old Baker land. Many are unable to agree, however, that because this park was called Lincoln the other had to be named Washington. Others, nevertheless, stoutly defended the council's action saying that the naming of the two parks was only the due of the men whose names they bear and that it was the city's duty to contribute in this small measure to the honor of the names of America's patriots.

Mishawaka is rich in Indian legends. Her early history was written in the deeds and lives of the red man and many people thought that appropriate Indian names would be in keeping with the spirit of the city. They pointed to South Bend and said that the best sounding name for parks there were Navarre and Pottawatomie. The discussion was occasioned by the fact that the ordinance naming the parks was not passed but came up for second reading and will be passed at the next meeting. This gives time for the discussion and those who gave their views on the question stated that they did so to aid in the matter and not merely to vent any disappointment they might feel.

Lincoln park is appropriate and well-named they all agree but many think that Washington park could be re-named without the least reflection on the great father of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. O'Neill and son Dennis left for San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal.

REMOVING PILES FROM BENEATH STRUCTURE

Workmen began Wednesday removing the piling from the river bed at the site of the Logan st. bridge. The large piles are beneath the massive concrete structure and sink many feet into the river bed. It is quite a task to dislodge and remove them and the work will probably consume some time. The concrete has now set in the bridge and there is no danger in removing the wooden structure in which it was moulded.

Immediately after the work of removing the piles has been completed, if not before, work will begin on the side railings of the bridge. The new railing of the roadway will probably be the last to be completed and as soon as it is the new $65,000 structure will be formally opened to the public.

OHIO MAN MAKES BOLD ATTEMPT AT FORGERY

George Andrews of Delphi, O., in Need of Money Writes False Check on Fred Pearse.

Arrested on a charge of attempting to pass forged checks in the saloons of Mishawaka, George Andrews of Delphi, O., is being held at the city jail for hearing Friday morning. Andrews was arrested by a patrolman early in the evening just after he had left the Mahank & Lauber saloon on Lincoln boulevard west. The check was written for $15 on Fred Pearse of the north side.

The first attempt Andrews made to cash the check was in "Dad" Ellsasser's place on N. Main st., where after purchasing a drink he presented the forged paper to Mr. Ellsasser. Ellsasser refused to cash it until after he had called Pearse as to its genuineness. The fellow fearing that he would be apprehended when Ellsasser called Pearse, left the saloon, saying that Ellsasser should not call and that he would see Pearse himself. Ellsasser in company with a friend followed the man north on Main st. where he entered the Ryckaert saloon. It is thought that here he threw the check into the stove as when he was searched no check could be found on him. He then left the saloon and went south on Main to Lincoln boulevard where his trail was picked up by an officer who had secured information as to his attempts to cash a forged check.

It is claimed that a witness who saw him write the check in the Kuhn saloon was the informer to the police. The fellow claims that he was once employed at South Bend and that he arrived in this city Tuesday evening looking for work. He says that he has a wife and child at Delphi, O.

A complaint has been filed and a warrant issued for the arrest of Lee Montine charging Montine with assault and battery. Mrs. Charles Higginson is the complaining witness.

It is claimed that in a fracas Sunday afternoon, Montine struck Charles Higginson, breaking his jaw in three places. It is claimed that the assault was brought about by insults made by Higginson which Montine resented.

Higginson is confined at the St. Joseph's hospital, and is still in a serious condition, although slightly improved.
